

Don't rush to nuclear... Blair told

An article in the Independent on Sunday picks up the Environment Agency's approach to the Energy Review - and uses it to challenge Tony Blair's pro-nuclear posture. A much better way would be to design a technology-neutral market that properly rewards low-carbon technologies and see which technologies are competitive. Nuclear might be the right answer. But it might not.